Rules governing use of library 3D printers

The library's 3D printers are available to the public to make three-dimensional objects using a design that is uploaded from a digital computer file.

1. The public will not be permitted to use the library's 3D printers to create material that is:

   a. Prohibited by local, state or federal law.
   b. Unsafe, harmful, dangerous or poses an imminent threat to the well-being of others, including but not limited to drug paraphernalia and weapons. (Such use may violate the terms of use of the 3D printer design software.)
   c. In violation of federal, state or local laws or regulations regarding accessing, viewing, printing and distributing obscenity or child pornography.
   d. In violation of another's intellectual property rights or the 3D printer design software terms of use. For example, the printers shall not be used to reproduce material that is subject to copyright, patent, trademark or trade secret protection.

2. The library reserves the right to refuse any 3D print request.

3. Cost: 3D printing cost at the library is based on a sliding scale, dependent on the size of the item being produced. Student projects will be charged on a case by case basis. The library reserves the right to change the fee scale in the future to cover the costs of printing materials.

4. Items printed from library 3D printers that are not picked up within thirty days after completion will become property of the library and the patron waives all property rights to the printed object. Design files will be deleted by library staff at the time of printing or at the end of each week. Items must be picked up by the patron who printed them unless alternative arrangements have been made in advance.

5. Patrons may only use the 3D printer with the assistance of designated library staff or volunteers and only after completing any required orientation. Damage to the printer will be subject to the library's damaged materials policy.

6. The library's 3D printers are intended for educational, entertainment and prototyping purposes. The library does not provide access to 3D printers for the production or sale of goods. Assistance with the use of the 3D printer by library staff does not constitute knowledge, or acknowledgement, of any final use of the 3D object. Once in possession by the patron, the library expressly disclaims any and all personal injury or property damage caused by use or misuse of a 3D printed object.
